

Tourism and Event Management Minor to Master of Science in Recreation Management Pathway

- Final admission to the Recreation Management Graduate Program is contingent upon completion of all undergraduate major program requirements.
- All majors may only pursue one REC minor-to-master's pathway.
- Students completing the tourism and event management minor-to-master's pathway may also complete the regular outdoor and recreation management minor; however, 12 unique credits of coursework are required for each minor.

The Tourism and Event Management Minor to Master of Science in Recreation Management Pathway provides students the opportunity to earn graduate credit for up to nine credits. Six credits will count towards both the tourism and event management minor and the Recreation Management Graduate Program. Students on the tourism and event management minor-to-master's pathway have the option of taking an additional three credits of a 500-level REC elective as an undergraduate that will count towards the Recreation Management Graduate Program.
